

Evening Stables

The Newsletter of Dalwhinnie Farm

Late Summer 2008

Greetings and Big Changes from Dalwhinnie...

Welcome y'all! I am writing the introduction to this issue for Laura until she has some time to write the remainder of the issue. I wanted to let you all know that this is where the Evening Stables will be placed at on the website. It is an easy way to stay updated with Dalwhinnie Farm, as well as, my farm and kennel. You may also check out my newsletter on the Ace-High site at www.acehigh.info.

We both really appreciate you taking a look around and finding out more information about us all. We are very excited about the joining of our two teams together in order to be at the top in the horse and dog industries.

Dalwhinnie has relocated from Venango, Pennsylvania, to Hendersonville, Tennessee, as part of this combination of our farms and kennels. I am very pleased to have Laura with me on my team. I know that her mother and she are looking forward to the change in scenery at being back in the South again. The heat has not been so nice to them, but everyone is getting adjusted to it. All of the horses, dogs, and people are in their new homes and finding out what their new lives here consist of.

I do hope that you will come back to this page soon so that you may see Laura's complete issue of the Evening Stables. She is such a great writer and always has great stories to tell.

We shall see you soon! Y'all come back now ya hear!

Amanda J. Brown

Owner, Junction Kennels and Ace-High Performance Horses
Hendersonville, Tennessee